Big Crowd at Red Cross Concert

A well filled hall last Sunday night fully enjoyed the concert, given in aid of the Red Cross National Relief Fund. $23.00 was the silver collection.

The ten classical numbers given by Mr. Len Davis and his orchestra were a delight, many of these numbers being Mr. Davis' own composition.

A very fine and instructive address by Mr. Dave Eiton K.U. of Lethbridge was appreciated by all, and the younger folks got a real thrill out of his opening remarks.

The local artists who assisted were Mrs. Fred Smith who sang two lovely songs, "Dune" and "Forgotten", Miss Kate Pharis at the piano. Rev. Peter Dawson, in good style, rendered "My Ain Folk" and "The End of The Road" and Mr. G. M. Campbell sang "The Admirals Broom" and "Come Back old Pal", the last number being with full orchestra accompaniment.

Special thanks must be given to all who took part in this program, who gave their services gratis for the cause and especially to Mr. Orville Smith who drove a hundred miles through storm and drifts to get Mr. Eiton here.

Tough Times in Russia

The following is a letter of a fugitive from Murmansk in the Ice Sea district of Soviet Russia who escaped about three months ago by going from the above mentioned district to Finland, then through Holland and on to Paris.

You people in America have no idea of the position we are in. We are treated worse than old time slaves. In olden times the owners fed their slaves because they had paid a big price for them but we slaves in Russia are so nothing it does not pay to feed us because if we get too weak and soft for work we are shot and others put in our place. We are brought up in troops of two to four hundred and our wives and children are taken away from us. Our living quarters are old sheds made by ourselves after our days work is done, where rain and snow and wind comes through everywhere. We have no heat of any kind except what we get by snowdrifts together like cattle. Our working hours are from daylight until our daily work is done. We are taken to work in groups of thirty and have to cut and trim fifteen trees per man, then we are marched back to our shed again. We are given one meal a day which we get in the morning before daylight. It consists of one pound potatoes, one slice bread and two pieces dried fish. Our sheds are surrounded with barbed wire and machine guns are placed in different places. In the evening we are marched in and the door is closed and if anyone tries to go out after dark he is shot down. In the morning when we are called we have to come out one behind the other. If anyone speaks to another he is shot down dead as there are always more slaves to replace him. If transportation was better in Soviet they would not bother feeding us at all, but they have to feed us enough to keep us alive until another troop arrives. If a fresh troop arrives in snow, rain or storm they are left in the open with no cover and they will bunch together like cattle to keep from freezing to death. We never change clothes summer or winter as we have nothing but rags and we crawl together to try and dry them. Our beds are small branches strewn on the ground. As I said we go to work in groups of thirty with one of our own men being responsible. Each man is responsible for the other. If one runs away the other twenty-nine will be shot down for letting him get away, and bloodhounds are put on his trail, and most times he is found and killed. Accidents occur every day. For want of nourishment the men are very weak, and in felling trees, every day someone is killed or injured. We are ordered to bury him at once dead or alive, and many times a man is buried who is only slightly hurt. I will just mention one instant which took place to give you an idea. One morning we were marching to work a walk of about three miles, when one of the men trips (me) and he stopped over to tie the shoe and was shot down from behind. His comrade beside him saw him fall and as he stooped to pick him up he also was shot down. Then the other twenty-eight were marched back to the shed and all were shot. Many such things happen daily. As punishment they have an old collar with muck up over your knees, no air, just rank smell. No man lives longer than seven days in this collar and most of them die in two to three days. No one ever leaves this place only through death. The olden slaves had a paradise to what we have.

ENO'S FRUIT SALT

One For All; All For One

Speaking to the brilliant gathering of celebrities assembled at the recent Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall, Premier Ramsay MacDonald declared: "We have been witnessing the complete breakdown of the doctrine of national economic self-sufficiency."

Truer, more significant words have seldom been uttered, but it is doubtful if people generally have yet come to a full realization of how futile the doctrine of self-sufficiency is, regardless of the fact that it is applied in the realm of national economics or in the narrower sphere of an individual's life.

Belief that one is sufficient unto oneself is an outgrowth of egotism which in itself is a sign of weakness and a fatal defect in character. Belief in oneself is essential to success, but to take the position that incorporated within ourselves are all the elements essential to success, that nothing more is needed, that we, and we alone apart from everybody and everything, can achieve, is a mistake, a fatal attitude.

And what is true of the individual is equally true of nations and peoples. During the progress of the Great War the nations of the world learned that not one of them, no matter how obscure or isolated it might be, nor how great and powerful it might be, could live unto and within itself alone. Not one proved self-sufficient. Rather, the Great War revealed the dependence of one on another, and the interdependence of all.

The Great War was a struggle for the supremacy of one of two conflicting ideas or principles in government—democracy versus autocracy. Either autocracy as represented by the German Kaiser and based on militarism, or democracy as represented by those countries constituting national governments based on the will of the people governed, had to prevail. Autocracy was defeated and democracy triumphed.

Out of that triumph arose the demand for the "self determination of peoples," and several new nations came into being. Unfortunately, these little nations fell impelled first of all to develop a so-called national spirit, and to attempt to make their new found independence as nations secure, by making themselves supposedly self-contained, self-sufficient. To that end they strove to shut other nations and the people and products of other nations out. In doing so, they actually shut themselves in. The interdependence taught by the Great War was lost in the nationalistic, economic struggle which succeeded the war.

But, as Ramsay MacDonald points out, this doctrine of national and economic self-sufficiency has completely broken down. One nation suffers loss of trade, and all nations find they, too, are suffering as a result. Unemployment develops in one country and automatically the resultant loss of purchasing power by the citizens of that country brings about unemployment in other countries which formerly did business with it.

The United States is, perhaps, the most compact, self-contained nation in the world today. Its national policies for many decades have been developed in that belief. Yet today the United States is suffering enormous declines in trade, with millions of its people unemployed, with its government facing a debt this year of the stupendous sum of two billions of dollars. Why? Because the prosperity of the United States is dependent upon the prosperity of other nations; because, despite all its proud boasts in the past, it is not a self-contained country; its self-sufficiency is not sufficient, because world depression prevails and the United States cannot escape its calamitous results.

The cities and towns of Western Canada, as well, and the doctors, lawyers, bankers, merchants, insurance and financial men, artisans and laborers who make up these urban communities are suffering the same fate. First of all, the farmers are suffering through loss of crops, low prices for what they have succeeded in producing, inability to market their produce at a profit. Nothing else is wrong with the cities and towns, but the fact that the great primary industry of this country, agriculture, upon which they depend just as truly as do the farmers themselves, has been stricken. The cities and towns are not sufficient unto themselves; they are dependent on the farms. And the farmers, in turn, are dependent upon the great consuming masses in the cities of the world to purchase their produce. Each class is dependent on the other; all are interdependent.

May this great lesson of the war and of these difficult post-war years sink in the consciousness of all people, may it become indelibly engraved in the memories of all, never to be forgotten, may it convince the statesmen of the world that their policies must in future be based in interdependence rather than in self-sufficiency, and founded on a large and broad international rather than in a selfish, narrow nationalism.

When Recovery Will Come

Canada will begin to recover when the world begins to recover, when the world will begin to recover when the impediments to world trade are reduced, war debts cancelled, and the frozen gold piles of the United States and France so melted that they will flow into the coffers of other countries in need of the yellow metal.

Discussing Support For Canadian Dollar

Heavy Discount Proves Boomerang To United States Business

United States banking and business interests are finding the heavy discount on the Canadian dollar somewhat of a boomerang and are considering action to alleviate their distress.

The New York Herald-Tribune, in a financial page item, remarking that banking interests in this country are taking note of the situation, says there is talk in Wall Street of "support" for the Dominion currency.

"It was pointed out," says the paper, "that the further the Canadian dollar declines the more difficult it becomes to do business with Canada. If prices are scaled up to meet the deficiency realized on exchange, it naturally becomes quite impossible to compete with Canadian or British goods in the Dominion. It is reasoned that New York's interests in supporting the Canadian dollar should receive additional support from banks and corporations which have bank balances in Canada. Corporations whose subsidiaries operate in Canada but pay dividends to parent companies on this side of the border should also be interested in supporting the Canadian dollar."

Just what form the "support" would take is not pointed out, but the Herald-Tribune says it is "recognized generally it would be of mutual benefit."

Publication Restricted

Bible Printed in England By Only Three Firms

Only three publishers are allowed to print the Bible in England. They are the Oxford and Cambridge presses and the King's Printer. These publishers have found that "there is money in the Bible" for millions of copies are sold or given away each year. Similar restrictions do not hold in the United States. Any one who wishes may publish the Bible, and it was recently announced, an "Americanized" version of it will soon be issued. The American Bible Society estimates that in 1920 alone, 34,000,000 copies of the Bible, or of sections of it including one book or more, were sold presented to those who could not afford to purchase them.

Colonization Progress

Many People Settled On Land Under Government Policy

The policy of encouraging colonization within Canada, instituted in September last year by Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, and conducted in the form of a co-ordinated effort by the department and railway companies, has resulted in return to the land of approximately 42,882 people, according to a statement made public at Ottawa.

Detailed returns to November 30, 1921, show a total of 6,040 families and 32,882 single men have been placed on farms since October 1, 1920, the former as settlers and the single men as farm laborers.

Cultural Value Zero

Replying to a questionnaire sent him by a New York city paper, J. L. Moncken, author, stated the attention of college students at United States universities is concentrated upon mean and trivial things. Very few of the professors who teach them are "really civilized men, and relatively few of the students come from civilized homes. Thus, the cultural value of the college tends to approximate zero."

Ancient Coins Found

Coins believed to be over 900 years old have been found in a cemetery in Reged, near Budapest, Hungary. They bear the effigy of King St. Stephen of Hungary, who was crowned in A.D. 1001, when Hungary first became an independent kingdom. The coins were found near the spot where a burial place of the bronze age was recently discovered.

Urge Use Of Home Products

Building Industry Said To Be Importing Huge Quantities Of Materials

An indictment of the building industry for importing millions of dollars' worth of materials annually, at the expense of similar products in Canada goods is made in a survey released by the Montreal industrial commission on unemployment. The survey, based on a year's work by Norman Holland, chairman of the commission, will be mailed to all members of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, it is announced.

Canada imported from the United States in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1921, building material valued at $26,845,437. The document deals with approximately 80 separate foreign products which, it is claimed investigation shows, were used in Canadian buildings.

Summing up, the document gives the following belief of the unemployment commission: "We believe if an independent commission were given authority to check over all specifications for such buildings as require financial support from the public of Canada, this would bring back to Canadian factories in one year at least half of the $27,000,000 worth of business which now goes to foreign countries."

In ancient Egypt at least four out of five persons had pyorrhea, childhood was no hygienic bed of roses, and arthritis and arteriosclerosis presumably were favorite topics when the elders swapped clinical notes. ## Interesting Statistics

Show Indians in Canada Are Thrifty and Prosperous

The census of Indians in Canada in 1920 gave the total number of men, women and children as 108,012. These are, of course, not all farmers, some being engaged in hunting and trapping, in lumbering, commercial fishing, and in transportation. However, according to the records of the Department of Indian Affairs, they had in the above year all told 1,101,175 acres of land fenced, 236,028 acres under actual cultivation. Other figures relating to the whole Indian community are: Brick, stone or frame dwellings, 9,442; other dwellings (mostly log), 11,880; churches, 358; council houses, 124; schoolhouses, 209; sawmills, 35. In addition to the number of day schoolhouses, there are 78 residential schools devoted to the education of the Indian population.

Canadian People Are Buying More Luxuries

Indicates Confidence In General Improvement Of Economic Conditions

The Canadian public has been purchasing more luxuries recently than for months past, indicating a possible loosening up of ready money and a more general confidence throughout the Dominion in the general improvement of economic conditions, states the department of trade and commerce in a statistical review. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, says the review, reports larger retail sales of radio and other musical instruments in October than in any month since last December. Sales by candy stores were also greater. Retail sales by furniture stores and by general department stores were also reported larger.

No More Examinations

Entrance examinations in Manitoba schools will be abolished in favour of recommendations by teachers on pupils' work throughout the term. Examinations which in former years have been the test for graduating from public to high schools, have been discontinued. In future graduation from public schools will be made on recommendation of the teacher.

Settler Made History

Alberta's first settler made the history books by murdering two of his neighbours, according to Professor A. E. Corbett, of the University of Alberta, in a recent dissertation on "Early Days Along the Saskatchewan." Peter Pond, Alberta's first farmer, came to the Athabasca River in 1775 and established a post 80 miles to the south of what is now Fort Chipewyan.

THE HOUSE OF DREAMS-COME-TRUE

-BY-

MARGARET FIEDLER

The idea that she might be an unwelcome guest at the station with lively consternation, and by the time she had accomplished the necessary change of train at Exeter, and found herself being trundled along on the leisurely branch line which conducted her to her ultimate destination, she had succeeded in turning herself into a condition that almost verged upon panic.

"Coombe Eve—Coombe Eve!" The sing-song intonation of the pressed-looking porter, first rising from a low note to a higher, then descending in contrary motion abruptly from high to low, was punctuated by the sharper, clipped pronunciation of the stationmaster as he hustled up the length of the platform declaiming: "Mowse! Mowse! Mowse!" with a maddeningly insistent repetition that reminded one of a cuckoo in June.

Apparently both stationmaster and porter were too much absorbed in the frenzied strophe and antistrophe effect they were producing to observe that any passenger, handicapped by luggage, contemplated descending from the train—especially arrivals were of rare occurrence at Coombe Eve—and Jean therefore hastened to transfer herself and her handbag to the platform unaided. A minute later the train ambled on its way again, leaving the stationmaster and the depressed porter mired in astonished admiration of the before the numerous trunks and suitcases, labelled "Peterson," which the luggage van of the departing train had vomited forth.

To the bucolic mind, such an unwelcome accumulation argued a passenger of quite superlative importance, and with accord the combined glances of the station staff raked the diminutive platform, to discover Jean standing somewhat forlornly in the middle of it, surrounded by the smiling cry of her luggage. The stationmaster hurried forward immediately to assist her, and Jean addressed him eagerly.

"I want a cab—cab"—correcting herself hastily—"to take me to Staple Marston."

The man shook his head. "There are no cabs here, miss," he informed her regretfully. "Anyone that wants to be taken to Staple Marston gets in a wagonette in advance." Then, seeing Jean's face lighten, he continued hastily: "But if they expect you up at Staple, you must be sure to send one of the cars to meet you. There"—triumphantly, as the chug-chug of an approaching motor came to them clearly on the crisp, cold air—"that'll be it, for certain."

Followed the sound of a car braking to a standstill in the road outside the station, and almost immediately a masculine figure appeared approaching rapidly from the lower end of the platform.

Even through the dusk of the winter afternoon Jean was struck by something curiously familiar in the man's easy, swinging stride. A surge of memories came flooding over her.

and she felt her breath catch in her throat at the sudden possibility which flashed into her mind. For an instant she was in doubt—the thing seemed so amazingly improbable. Then, touching his hat, the stationmaster moved respectfully aside, and she found herself able to face with the unknown Englishman from Montevideo.

She gazed at him speechlessly, and for a moment he, too, seemed taken aback. His eyes met hers in a startled, leaping glance of recognition and something more, something that set her pulses racing unaccountably.

"Little comrade!" she could have sworn the words escaped him. Then, almost in the same instant, she saw the old, rather weary gravity replace the sudden fire that had blazed up in the man's eyes, quenching its light.

"So you are Miss Peterson?"

There was no pleasure, no welcome in his tones; rather, an unaccountable frown of vexation as though Fate had played some scurvy trick upon him.

"Yes." The brief monosyllable was hardly in reply; she hardly knew how to answer him, how to meet his mood. Then, hastily calling up her reserves she went on lightly: "You don't seem very pleased to see me. Shall I go away again?"

His mouth relaxed into a grim smile.

"This isn't Clapham Junction," he answered tersely. "There won't be a train till ten o'clock tonight."

"In that case," she returned gravely, "what do you advise?"

"I apologise," he replied promptly. "I apologise. Please forgive such an ungracious reception Miss Peterson—there was something in the nature of a surprise to find that you were—you!" Jean laughed.

"I'll give you an unfair advantage, too," she replied. "I still haven't penetrated your incognito—but I suppose you are Mr. Brennan?" "Yes," he said, "I am. My half brother, Mr. Blaise Tormarin, and as my mother was unable to meet you herself, I came instead, shall we say, to give the stationmaster instructions about your luggage."

So the unknown Englishman of Montevideo was the man of whom the two women at the neighboring lunch table in the hotel had been gossiping—the central figure of that most tragic love-affair! Jean thought she could discern, now, the origin of some of those embittered comments he had let fall when they were together in the train.

In silence she followed him out of the little wayside station to where the big hall-entrance of a stationer's car stood a blaze of light on the road way, and presently they were slipping smoothly along between the high hedges which flanked the road on either hand.

CHAPTER IX.

The Master of Staple

It was too dark to distinguish details as the big car drew along, but Jean's eyes were fixed instinctively to the still, mysterious charm of the country-side at even.

A slender young man, dressed like a cavalier, sat in the dusky blue of the calm sky, his pale light faintly outlining the tops of the trees and the dim, gracious curves of distant hills, and touching the mist that filled the valley to a nebulous, pearly gleam, so that to Jean's eager eyes the foot of the hills seemed hazy by some phantom sea of fog.

She felt no inclination to talk. The smooth rhythm of the pulsing car, the chill sweetness of the evening air against her face, the shadowy, half-revealed landscape all combined to hush her into a mood of tranquil acceptance, and she waited after the fatigue of her journey and the shock of her unexpected meeting with the Englishman from Montevideo.

For a long time they drove in silence, Tormarin seeming no more disposed to talk than she herself.

Presently, however, he slowed the car down and, half-turning in his seat, addressed her abruptly.

"This is somewhat in the nature of an anticlimax," he remarked, the comment quite evidently springing from the thoughts which had been absorbing him.

He spoke curtly, as though he represented the march of events. Jean felt herself jolted suddenly out of the peaceful reverie into which she had fallen.

"Yes. It is odd we should meet again so soon," she assented hurriedly.

"The silence had been broken—after all you may be sure, Miss Peterson, it was by no will of mine." Jean smiled under cover of the darkness.

"You're not very complimentary," she returned. "I'm sorry our meeting seems to afford you so little satisfaction. There was a ripple of laughter in her tones."

"It's not that." As he spoke, he slackened speed until the car was barely moving. "You know it's not that," he continued, his voice terse. "But, all the same, I'm going to ask you—to forget Montevideo."

Invents New Airplane

Machine With No Propeller Result Of Twenty Years Study

Dr. Raimund Nimmfuer, the Austrian scientist, who has invented an airplane built like a hummingbird, started years ago to figure out how much energy a great would use if it had a wing spread of forty feet. The scientist, who has been working on a description of his wing-flapping plane, with no propeller, marks the climax of twenty years of patient study based on the study of the methods of nature in the flight of a bird. The hollow wings carry a flexible membrane on the underside. They pulsate or vibrate rapidly in response to a pneumatic mechanism. Professor of aerodynamics at the University of Vienna, where he obtained his doctor's degree, Dr. Nimmfuer wrote many books and theses on aviation technology. His book, "The Bird as a Flying Machine," was a best-seller in Germany.

One of the main causes of the present lack of balance between production and consumption is undoubtedly economic nationalism. It is to say, the desire of each country itself to produce the whole of its requirements. This is in effect a semi-war policy. In all countries the Protectionist movement comes straight from the feeling that other countries are partial, or at any rate partial enemies. As a result, we find that wherever a political barrier is created there is a tendency to set up economic barriers. Directly the Irish attained Home Rule, they imposed tariffs on English goods, and it is fairly certain that if the different states of Australia were to be federated, they would in some possible trade barrier against one another. As long as this spirit of economic nationalism exists we shall not have the world progress of settling the world problem of lack of balance between production and consumption.—Spectator, London, England.

Used His Privilege

Judge Held Man Can Stretch His Imagination When Courting

Superior Judge Thomas Gould sat in court at Los Angeles, where Lotay Phillips entered a plea for the annulment of his marriage to Stanley Phillips. The ground was that when Stanley had come to do his courting he had made promises of a bright future. He was a man of some importance according to his own statements. He had been married to a woman, her husband was a very ordinary person, possessed of little cash, and he failed rather distastefully to live up to the picture of opulence he had painted in former days.

But the judge held that the lady in the case had no grounds to secure an undoing of the marriage tie. He even went so far as to state plainly that men had for years been painting rosy pictures of what they would do if they lived with only say, say.

His worship said there was no written law which held in check the imagination of a man courting, and his tongue could wiggle as much as he pleased to make it wiggle in his affection to live with the object of his affection.

Of course, by the same token, there is no law which makes it necessary for the lady to believe all that the arch-villain is saying. She can listen to his pleading, and then say a very decided "NO."

Aviator Warned Engineer

Had Seen Burning Trestle From Air and Wreck Was Averted

The engineer of Burlington train No. 3, on its way through Iowa from Chicago to Denver, must have been a much surprised man when an airplane came alongside and the pilot began to gesticulate. He could not hear what the aviator was saying, but it was clear that he was being warned about something ahead. The engineer halted, and it was well he did. A trestle had caught fire, and the aviator had seen it from his perch of vantage in the skies.

It used to be that a noble youth wrapped his red flannel shirt around a pig-handle and taking a position on the tracks, flagged the Limited just as it was about to roar out upon a broken bridge. Sometimes it was the passengers, an annual pass from the railroad, and got a new start in life by saving the train. But the noble youth and the hero could see only danger in their immediate vicinity. The airplane has a wider range. The Burlington engineer and his passengers will never again refer to aircraft as "those pesky things."

An Aid To Efficiency

London Physician Says Headache Makes Women Work Better

Headaches increases the efficiency of the average woman worker. This startling theory is advanced by a Harley Street physician who has conducted a lengthy survey of the health of 500 women piece-workers. For six months the women were asked to record daily on a chart the state of their heads.

There were compared from day to day with the output of the women, and it was found that most work was done on days when a woman complained of a headache. Concentration on their work to forget the pain is the explanation offered.

Crop Produced By Indians

The Indians of Canada Engaged in Farming Produced in 1929, According to the Department of Indian Affairs, the following quantities of grains, roots, and fodder:

Wheat, 458,600 bushels; oats, 166,772 bushels; peas and beans, 24,022 bushels; potatoes, 295,626 bushels; other roots, 80,322 bushels; other crops, 27,910 tons; and 50,894 tons; other fodder, 24,379 tons.

Cheapest Of All Oils.—Considering the qualities of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil it is the cheapest of all preparations offered to the public. It is to be found in every drug store in the United States, and in every country merchants keep it for sale. So, being easily procurable and extremely moderate in price, no one should be without a bottle of it.

The Forest Service, Department of the Interior, states that on about 200,000 acres of the productive and accessible forest land of Canada the timber is of merchantable size, as compared with 30,000 acres in the United States. There is a great growth of various species and ages.

Primitive Motor Cars

England Had the First Self-Propelled Road Vehicle

Austria recently celebrated the anniversary of Siegfried Marcus, whom Central Europeans claim as the original inventor of the motor-car. His first car, which appeared in 1861, says an item in Answers, was driven by oil, and an improved edition of it came before the public in 1875. This Marcus car was not the first self-propelled road vehicle. A British inventor, Richard Trevithick, ran a steam coach on the London streets 128 years ago, and for a long time the steam road vehicle was a very real competitor of the railways. The use of oil in Marcus's car, however, makes it a real landmark in the story of mechanical road transport.

Source Of Grain Rust

Western Canada Plague Traced To Raspberry Bushes In Mississippi Valley

Responsibility for grain rust in western Canada was traced to raspberry bushes in the upper Mississippi Valley and in southern Texas by J. Peterson, of the Dominion rust laboratory, addressing the Canadian Society of Agriculturists at Winnipeg. The Mississippi Valley, he said, was the chief source of local rust epidemics, but spores of wheat stem rust winter in Texas.

Of 28 known varieties of oat rust he added, nine were found to be native in western Canada, and no oat variety was resistant to them all.

RAIL OUTLET FOR PEACE RIVER IS REQUESTED

Victoria, B.C.—The royal commission on transportation has argued in favor of a Peace River outlet to the Pacific Coast and the presentation of a number of views on the matter in which none of the railway problems of Canada might be solved at a public meeting in the court house here.

The commission announced that it would receive in writing a presentation from the British Columbia Government regarding the problem of the Peace River outlet to the Pacific Coast.

H. W. Wilson, of Fernie, B.C., representing mining interests, urged the best and cheapest way to develop additional traffic for the western railway divisions was to extend a line into the northern territory of the Peace River area by way of Peace Pass. He said this connection would open up an empire of new mineral wealth, with new towns, increase the revenues of the railways, solve the Pacific Great Eastern problem, and largely solve the unemployment problem of western Canada.

T. D. Pattullo, provincial Liberal leader, urged that it was the duty of the Dominion Government to determine the Peace River outlet issue, concerning which, he said, it was reported that there was disagreement between the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways.

S. R. Ross, representing agricultural interests, urged an arrangement between the railways by which all freight would be handled by the Canadian National mountain lines, because, he said, one locomotive could haul 60 cars on the Canadian National grades as against 20 cars on the Canadian Pacific grades.

Forty per cent. of the railway traffic of the Canadian Pacific is derived from agriculture, Mr. Ross stated. He protested against the Canadian Pacific having, according to his claim, turned $64,000,000 in profit derived from such traffic in the last ten years, to building new ships and other developments, instead of lowering freight rates for farm products. He also recommended the cutting out of all railroad duplication across Canada.

Alfred W. T. Strath and D. S. Teit, representing the City of Victoria, and grain elevator interests, urged the lack of co-operation between the two railways in regard to matters here.

Asks Investigation

Of Factory Exodus

Tariffs Blamed For Exodus Of Plants To Canada

Washington, D.C.—The exodus of factories from the United States to Canada was the subject of a resolution introduced into congress by Representative Hare of Indiana, a Democrat. Mr. Canfield called for a commission to investigate.

"Mr. Canfield," asked the Canadian Press, "is it not the duty of this commission to demonstrate to the country that the reason for the factory situation is the tariff?"

"I didn't say that," said Mr. Canfield, "but I think everybody knows that is the reason factories are going away from here."

The representative said he had observed that many factories were going to Canada and that there must be a reason. He had investigated and discovered that labor conditions in Canada were about the same as in the United States.

Therefore, he had concluded to ask for a congressional commission to investigate.

Ontario Aids Farm Holders

Florida Foreclosure Of Any Mortgage Held By Province

Toronto, Ont.—The Ontario Government has notified the Provincial Agricultural Development Board—which holds $35,000,000 of farm mortgages—not to foreclose under any circumstances when mortgagees are unable to meet their obligation. Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General and Acting Premier announced. The step is being taken in order to give farmers every opportunity to weather present financial difficulties.

The Attorney-General revealed the action of the government in regard to farm mortgages during the course of an announcement that the government would bring down legislation at the next session of the legislature to provide for a modified moratorium on mortgages.

"We realize that in these times of financial stress, people who otherwise would be able to meet their payments are in considerable difficulty and the government is anxious to help them over this period of financial stringency," said Mr. Price.

"I have asked loan companies to be lenient in this regard and I have also approached sheriffs and bailiffs and made the same request. But there is no legislation at present providing for relief and the government intends to have the entire matter discussed on the floor of the legislature with a view to some form of legislation."

Industry Must Prepare For Imperial Conference

It If It Is To Result In Intimate Economic Partnership

London, Eng.—Industry throughout the Empire must organize itself and take a leading part in the preparation for the Ottawa Imperial Conference, says the London Times, in an editorial headed "Industries and the Empire." It expressed the opinion that great satisfaction will be manifested throughout the Empire after Sir H. J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary, made his statement to the House of Commons.

"But," adds the Times, "much more than government departmental pressure is required to make the Ottawa conference a success. Industries themselves, both here and in the Dominions, must prepare if the conference is to result in intimate economic partnership. It should, therefore, be clear the cancellation of the British Chamber of Commerce should be definite enough to encourage industries to start preparation."

Gale Paralyzed Shipping

Newfoundland Homes Were Flooded and Wharves Swept Away

St. John's, Nfld.—Newfoundland was estimating the damage caused by a gale that swept the island province for two days.

Reports reaching St. John's indicated that shipping was paralyzed all along the coast, while some water-front homes were flooded and wharves swept away. From inland points came word of dislocated telegraph and telephone systems.

Reminding the shore dwellers of the death-dealing quakes of 1929, the gale would be remembered as the worst in the history of the island province, carrying away many wharves, small boats and much fishing gear. At Portlawton and Davis Cove several homes were flooded.

PREMIER ASKS SUPPORT OF RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

S.S. Duchess of Richmond, At Sea.—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett issued the following appeal to Canadians in support of the campaign of the Canadian Red Cross Society, which was inaugurated December 10.

"Before having Canada I decided to make an appeal to the people of the Dominion for a national emergency fund to be raised by voluntary subscription and used for the relief of suffering and distress during the coming winter."

"With this in view I asked the Canadian Red Cross Society to undertake, in co-operation with other organizations and societies, the necessary collection and distribution of this fund. His Excellency, the Governor-General, in his capacity as president of the Red Cross, accepted the willingness of the society to carry on this effort with the fullest understanding, sympathy and efficiency."

"We are faced today with difficulties that are in some respects similar to those which confronted us during the Great War. Our troubles are less serious than those of some other countries but, nevertheless, there is a great deal of distress and suffering resulting from the economic depression, widespread unemployment and continued crop failure in large areas of the prairie provinces."

"Parliamentary action and expenditures to provide what the government might deem best in the form of official undertakings to minimize unemployment. Through a co-operative program with provincial governments and municipalities much has been accomplished in providing relief for the unemployed. But even so, there has been and will be need to go through such regular official expenditures and channels, there are large numbers of special cases in all parts of Canada that cannot be cared for through governmental activities. They can only be effectively dealt with through voluntary attention and assistance."

"It is for these that I appeal to the generosity and public spirit of our citizens. I am proud of what they have done and are doing, but there is still an urgent problem before us. I feel confident that the liberal and humane kindness they have shown in the past will be expressed again on this occasion."

"I am proud of what the men, women and children in our Dominion who are not themselves in need, and also all organizations, clubs, societies and lodges of every kind, to make a sacrifice for this cause. Let us as a people make sure that no child shall go hungry or unclothed, and no sick or afflicted person shall lack care. We may be grateful that the outlook for the future is becoming brighter and we may wish to count on a strong and fruitful future in our national life by helping those of our countrymen who are in distress and want."

British People Help In Financial Distress

The department, Mr. Stevens said, had taken the matter up with the rubber, silk and wool industries and was working for a similar system. These industries could buy their materials direct from the producing countries, thereby keeping the money in the country.

The most serious difficulty was the reluctance of the average business man to change his way of doing business.

Give Valuable For Auction Bringing $5,700 To Treasury

Among the items were two pounds minted for President Kruger of South Africa, a gold five-pound piece and a gold guinea guinea.

CANADA BUYING TOO MUCH RAW MATERIAL IN U.S.

Winnipeg, Man.—Plans to free Canadian trade from the tribute it now pays to large foreign shipping and warehousing services in the United States are being studied by the Dominion Government, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated here. Already, he said, negotiations have been entered with three branches of manufacturing industry to induce them to cease buying imported raw materials through United States agencies.

The recent drop in the value of the Canadian dollar in New York, Mr. Stevens said, had demonstrated more forcibly than ever before that Canada was too dependent on the United States.

Every year, the Minister said, this country imported millions of dollars worth of raw materials from the United States. The most serious difficulty was the reluctance of the average business man to change his way of doing business.

The department, Mr. Stevens said, had taken the matter up with the rubber, silk and wool industries and was working for a similar system. These industries could buy their materials direct from the producing countries, thereby keeping the money in the country.

Sad To Relate

A bunch of criers went out one night to Carmargay it was they went to fight.

But talk about a bunch of dandies, The score ended 20 to 6.

They took their brooms but not their rocks, And went about like fighting cocks.

They played a game, we must admit, And played it 'till they had to quit.

For when they came, their score to mark The Carmargay boys ran out of chalk.

The program recently rendered by the Vulcan Band and assisting artists will be repeated at a near date, at Champion.

Several musicians from town rendered splendid service as members of the band and other artists made fine contributions.
